Three Questions. One Verdict.

This report follows a single narrative thread: What happened → How dramatic was it → Why it happened.

Q1 · WHAT HAPPENED

The Geographic Shift

TVK swept all 6 regions of Tamil Nadu in its very first election. We map where the wins came from and how the seat tally changed from 2021 to 2026.

Q2 · HOW DRAMATIC

The Great Reshuffle

163 of 234 constituencies changed winner — 69.7% of the entire assembly. We trace exactly which party lost seats to whom using a full transfer matrix.

Q3 · WHY IT HAPPENED

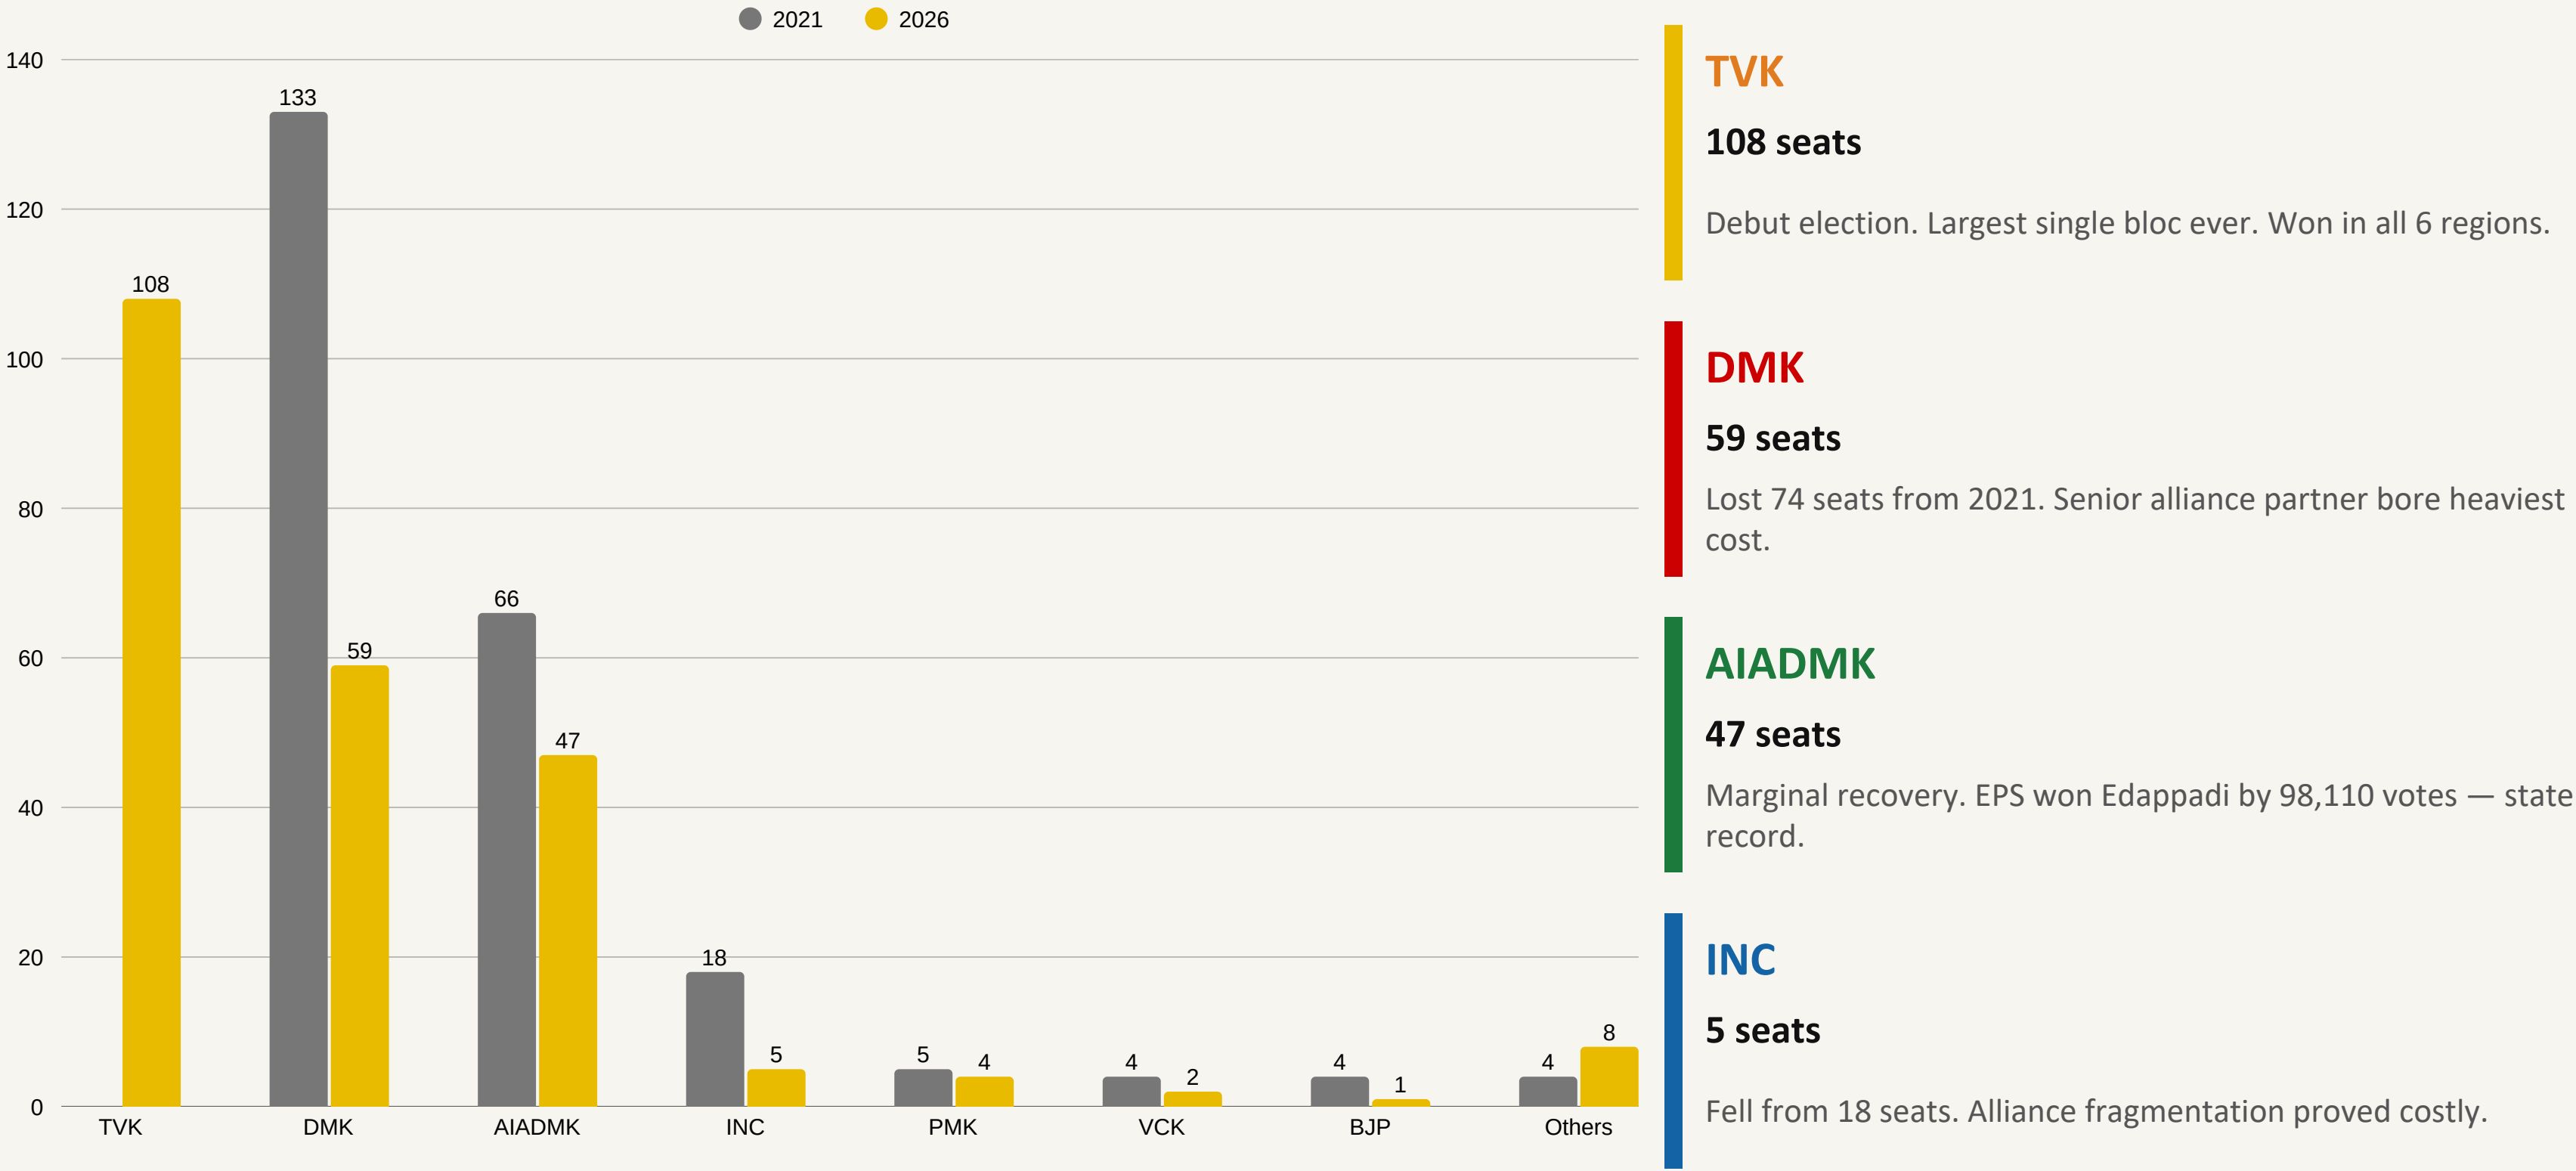

The Vote Share Origin

TVK's 34.9% came from somewhere. We decompose its vote gain party-by-party and region-by-region to reveal the depth of the political realignment.

Q1 — SEATS

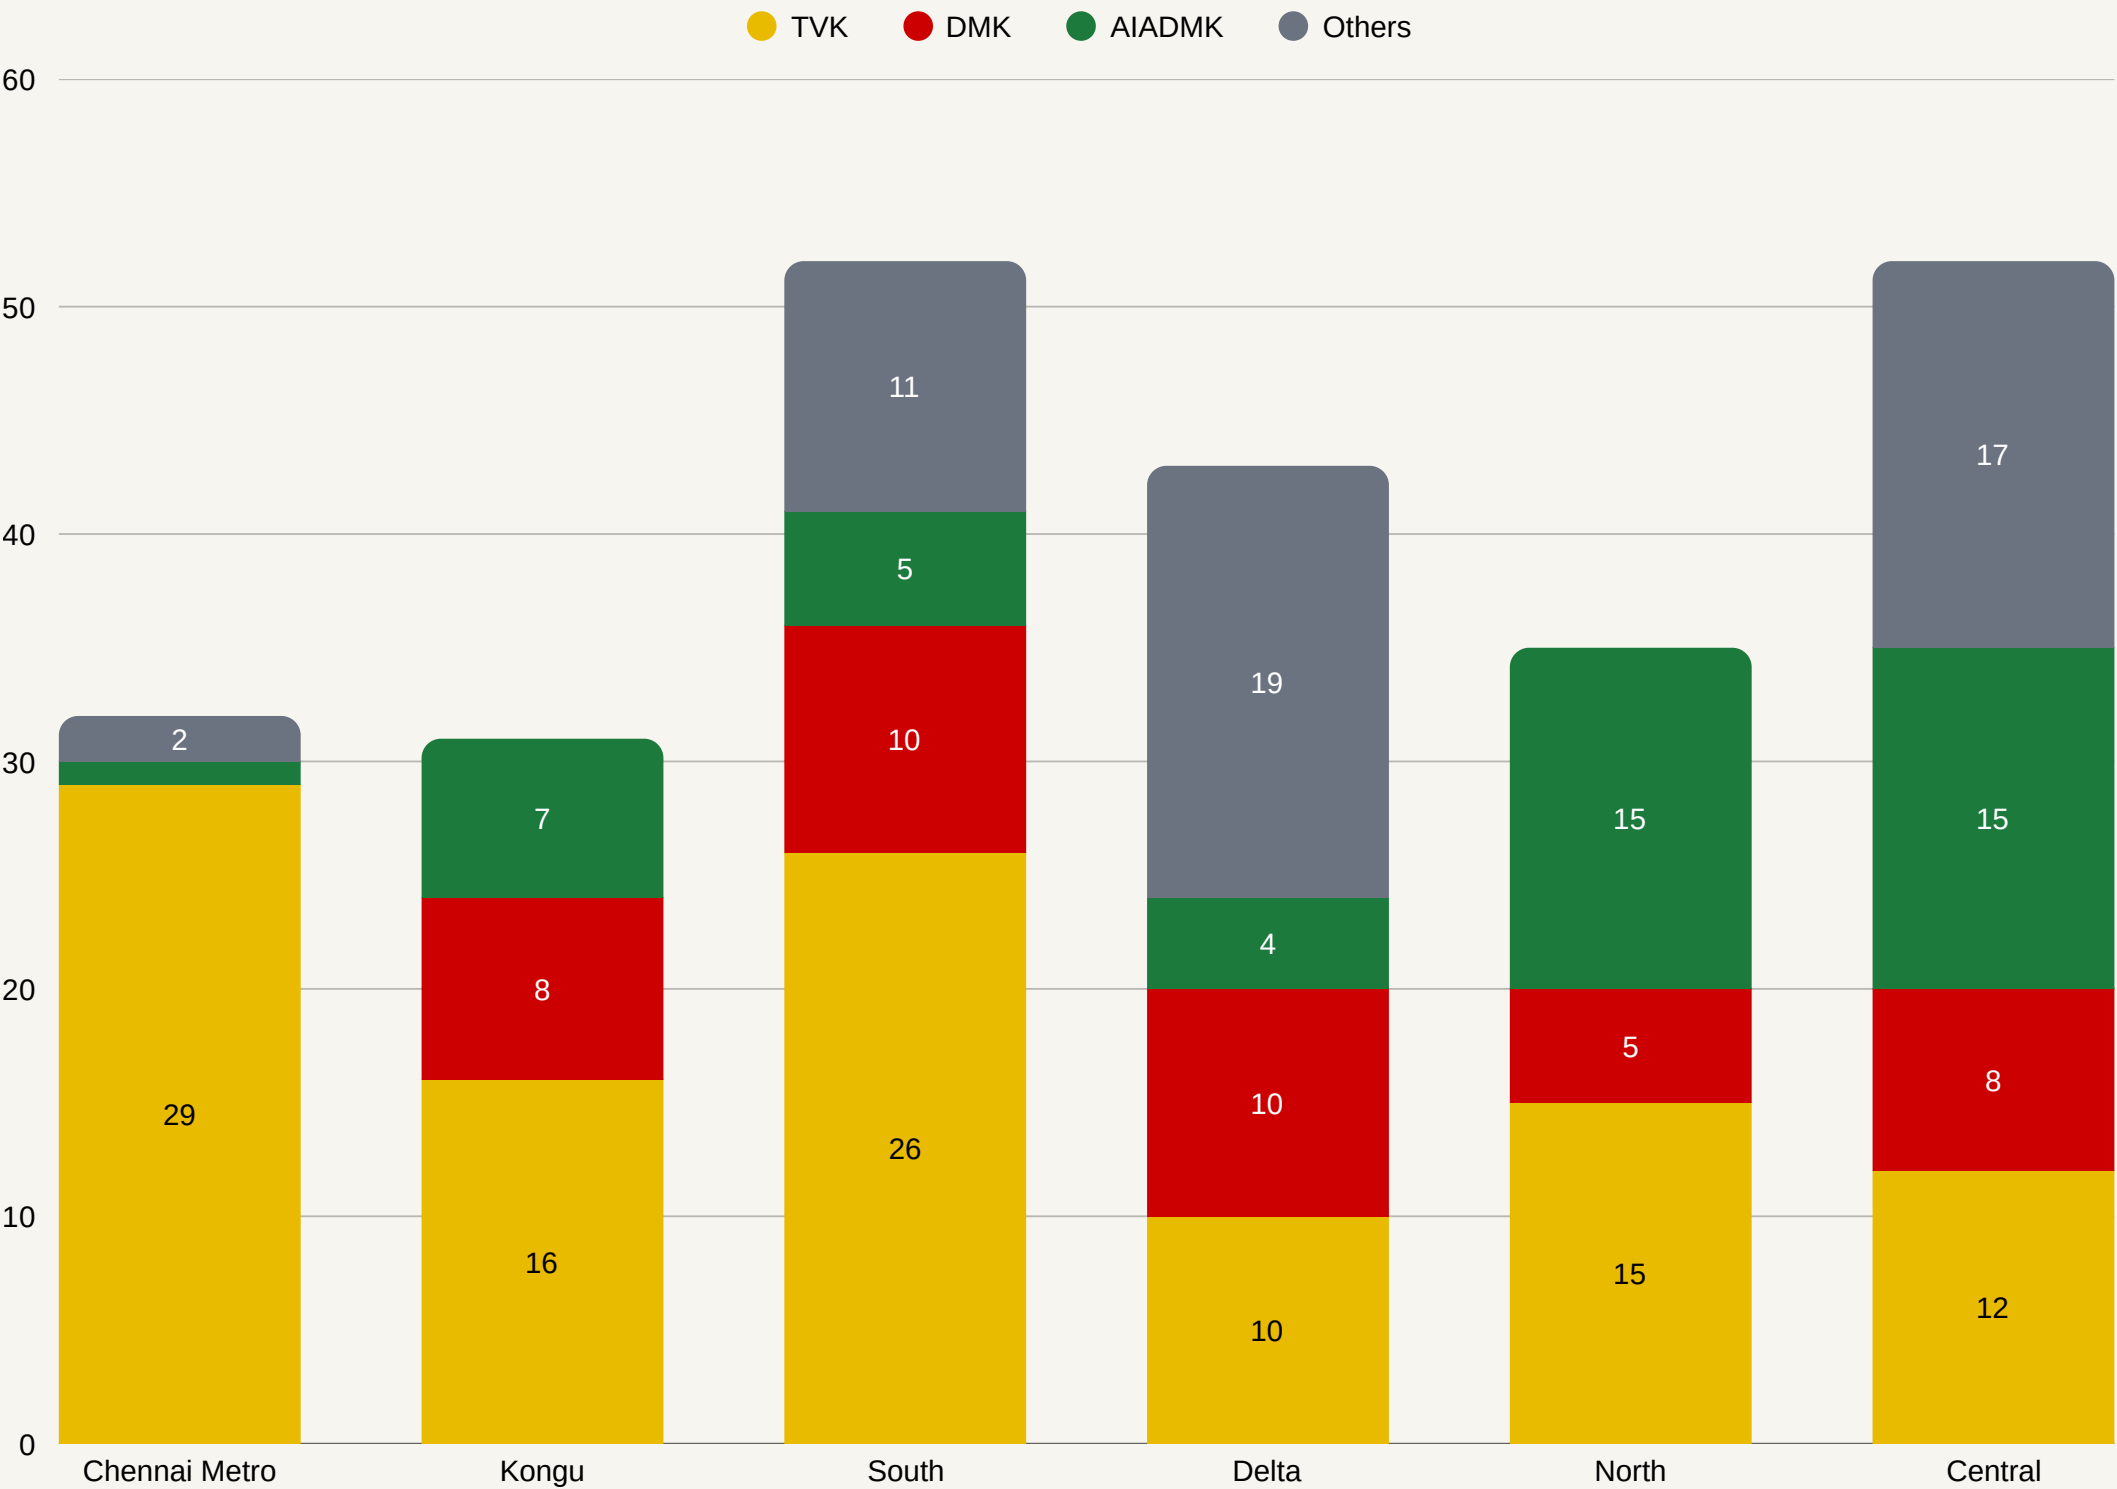

A New Political Order in 234 Constituencies

Majority mark: 118 seats · TVK fell 10 short — coalition government formed · SQL: COUNT(*) GROUP BY party

Q1 — REGIONS

TVK dominated Every Region — But Not Equally

Chennai Metro

29 / 32

TVK's strongest fortress — 90.6% of seats. Matches DMK's 2021 peak (45.3% vs TVK's 46.6%).

Kongu Belt

16 / 31

AIADMK + BJP stronghold. TVK won majority but AIADMK held 7. EPS's home turf proved resilient.

Central

12 / 41

TVK's weakest region. AIADMK won 15 seats. Edappadi personally won by 98,110 — state's biggest margin.

South

26 / 52

INC retained pockets (Nagercoil belt) limiting TVK ceiling. AIADMK near-wiped here.

Q2 — FLOW

Seat Flow 2021 → 2026: TVK Absorbed From Everyone

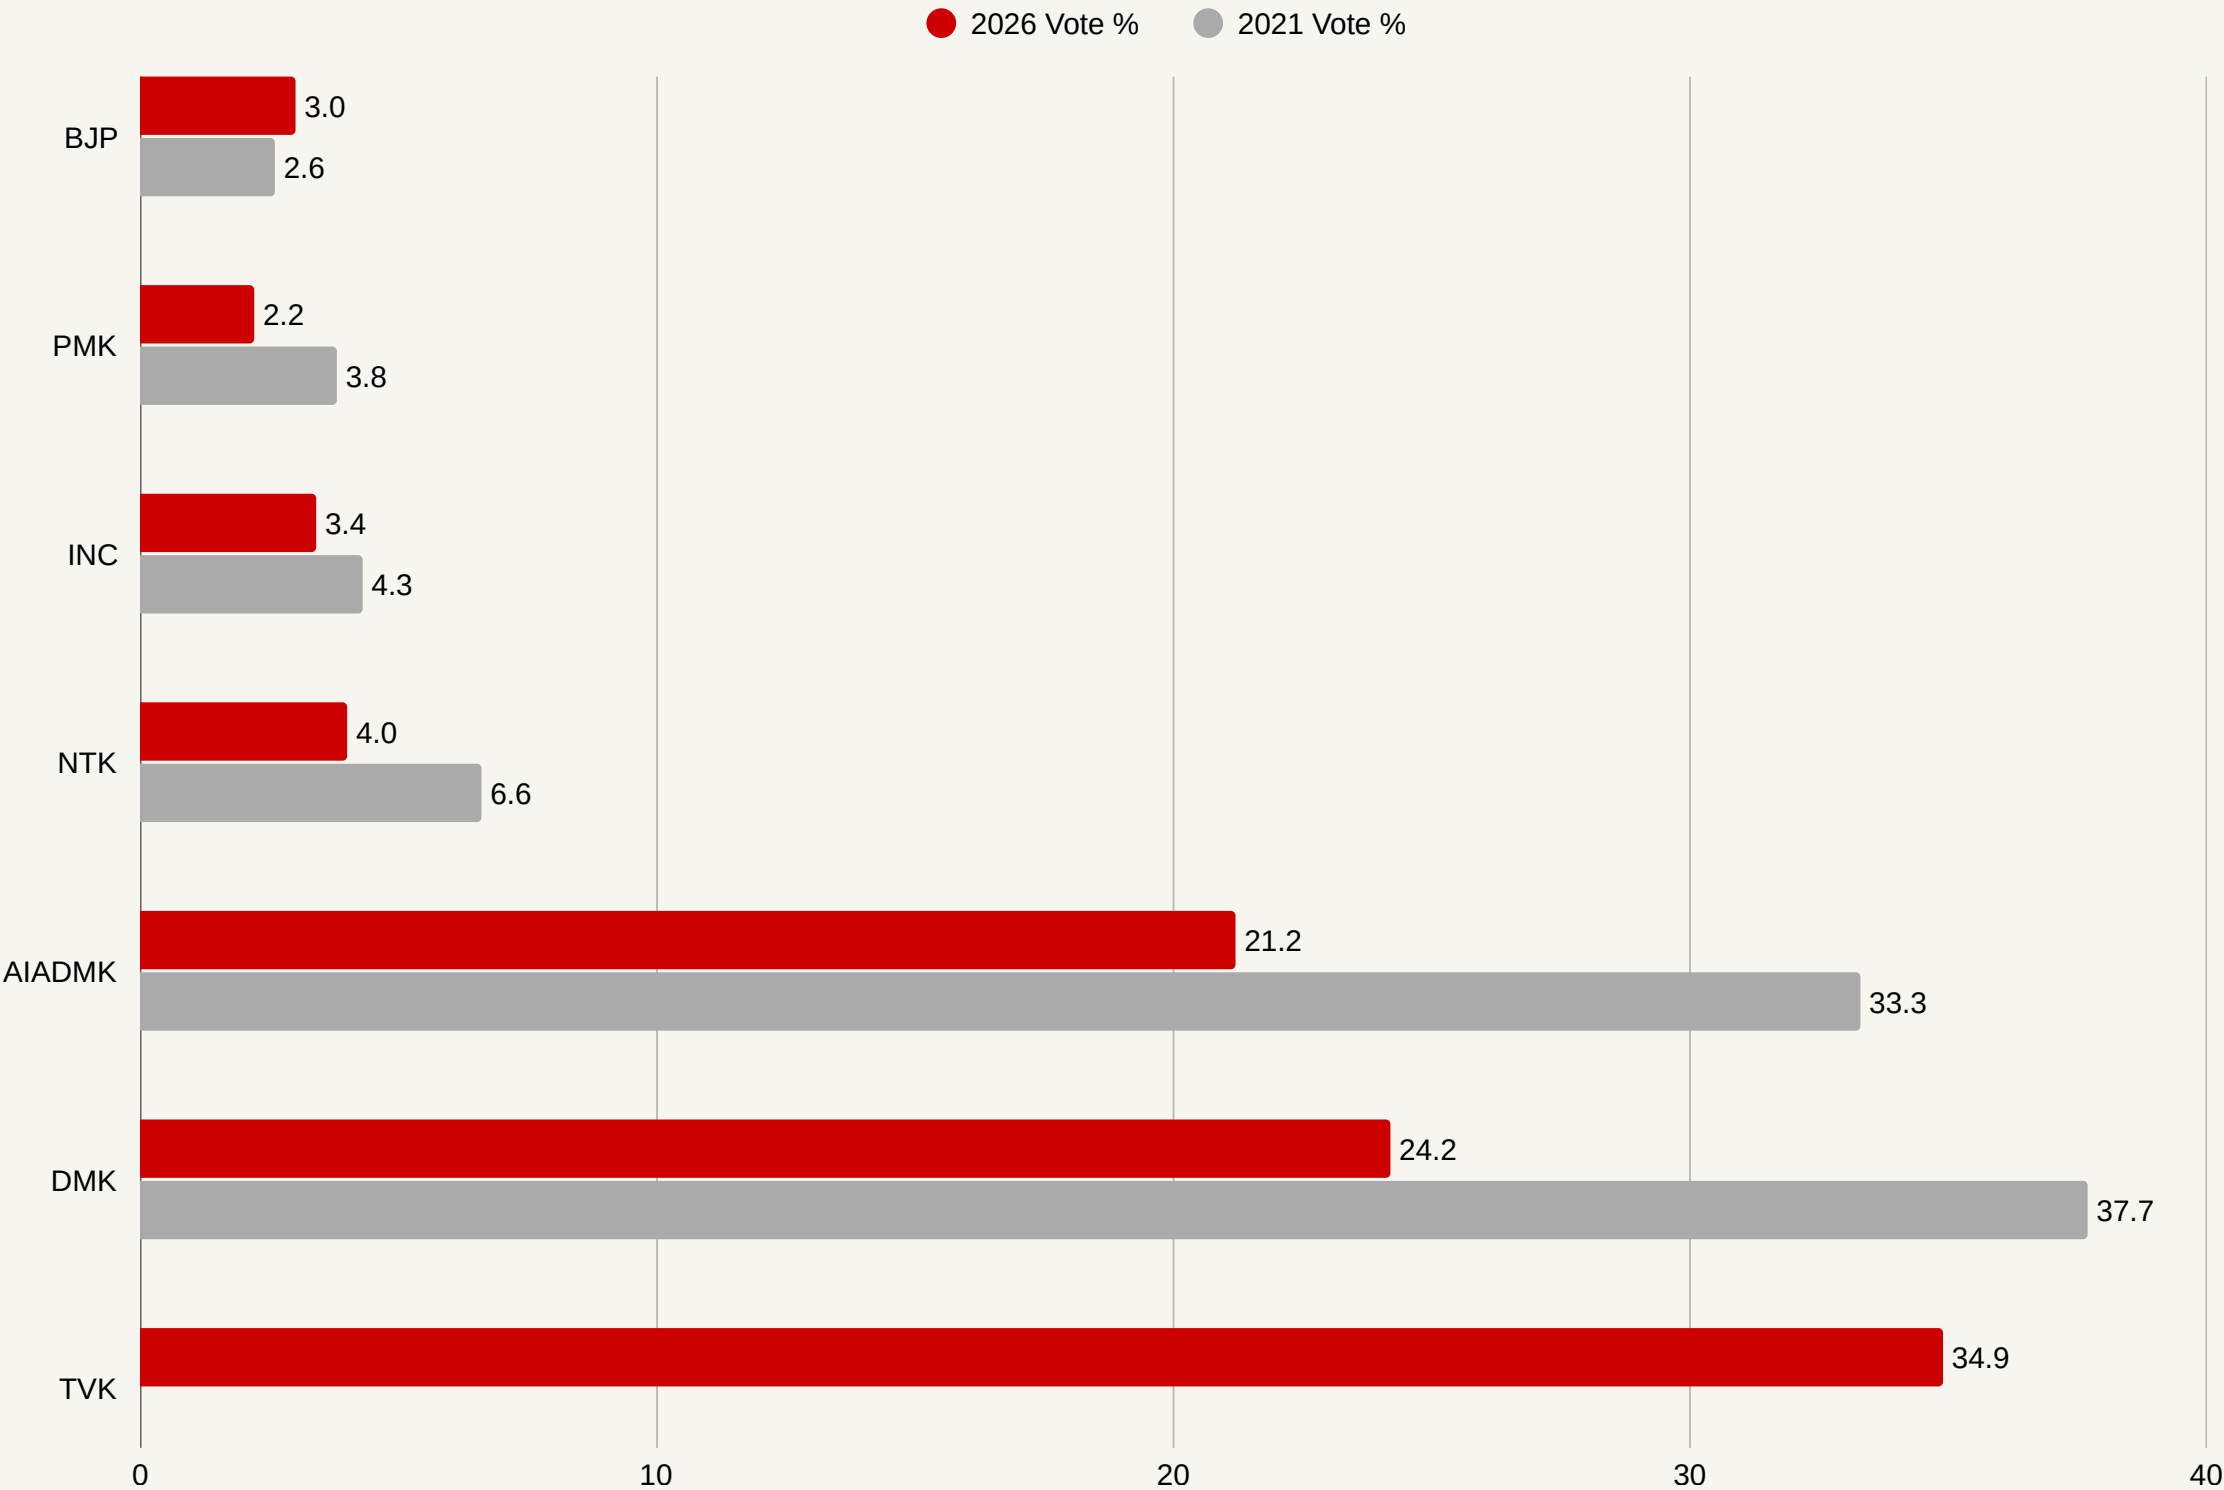

KEY FLOWS

Critical insight: TVK drew from ALL parties — not just a DMK splinter. This is what separates a realignment from a protest vote.

Q3 — VOTES

Where Did TVK's 34.9% Come From?

SQL: SUM(votes)/total UNION ALL 2021 vs 2026 on party · swing = share_2026 – share_2021

TVK 34.9% — BUILT FROM SCRATCH

From DMK erosion

~13.5%

DMK 37.7% → 24.2% (-13.5pp)

From AIADMK erosion

~12.1%

AIADMK 33.3% → 21.2% (-12.1pp)

NTK + others

~5.1%

NTK 6.6% → 4.0% (-2.6pp)

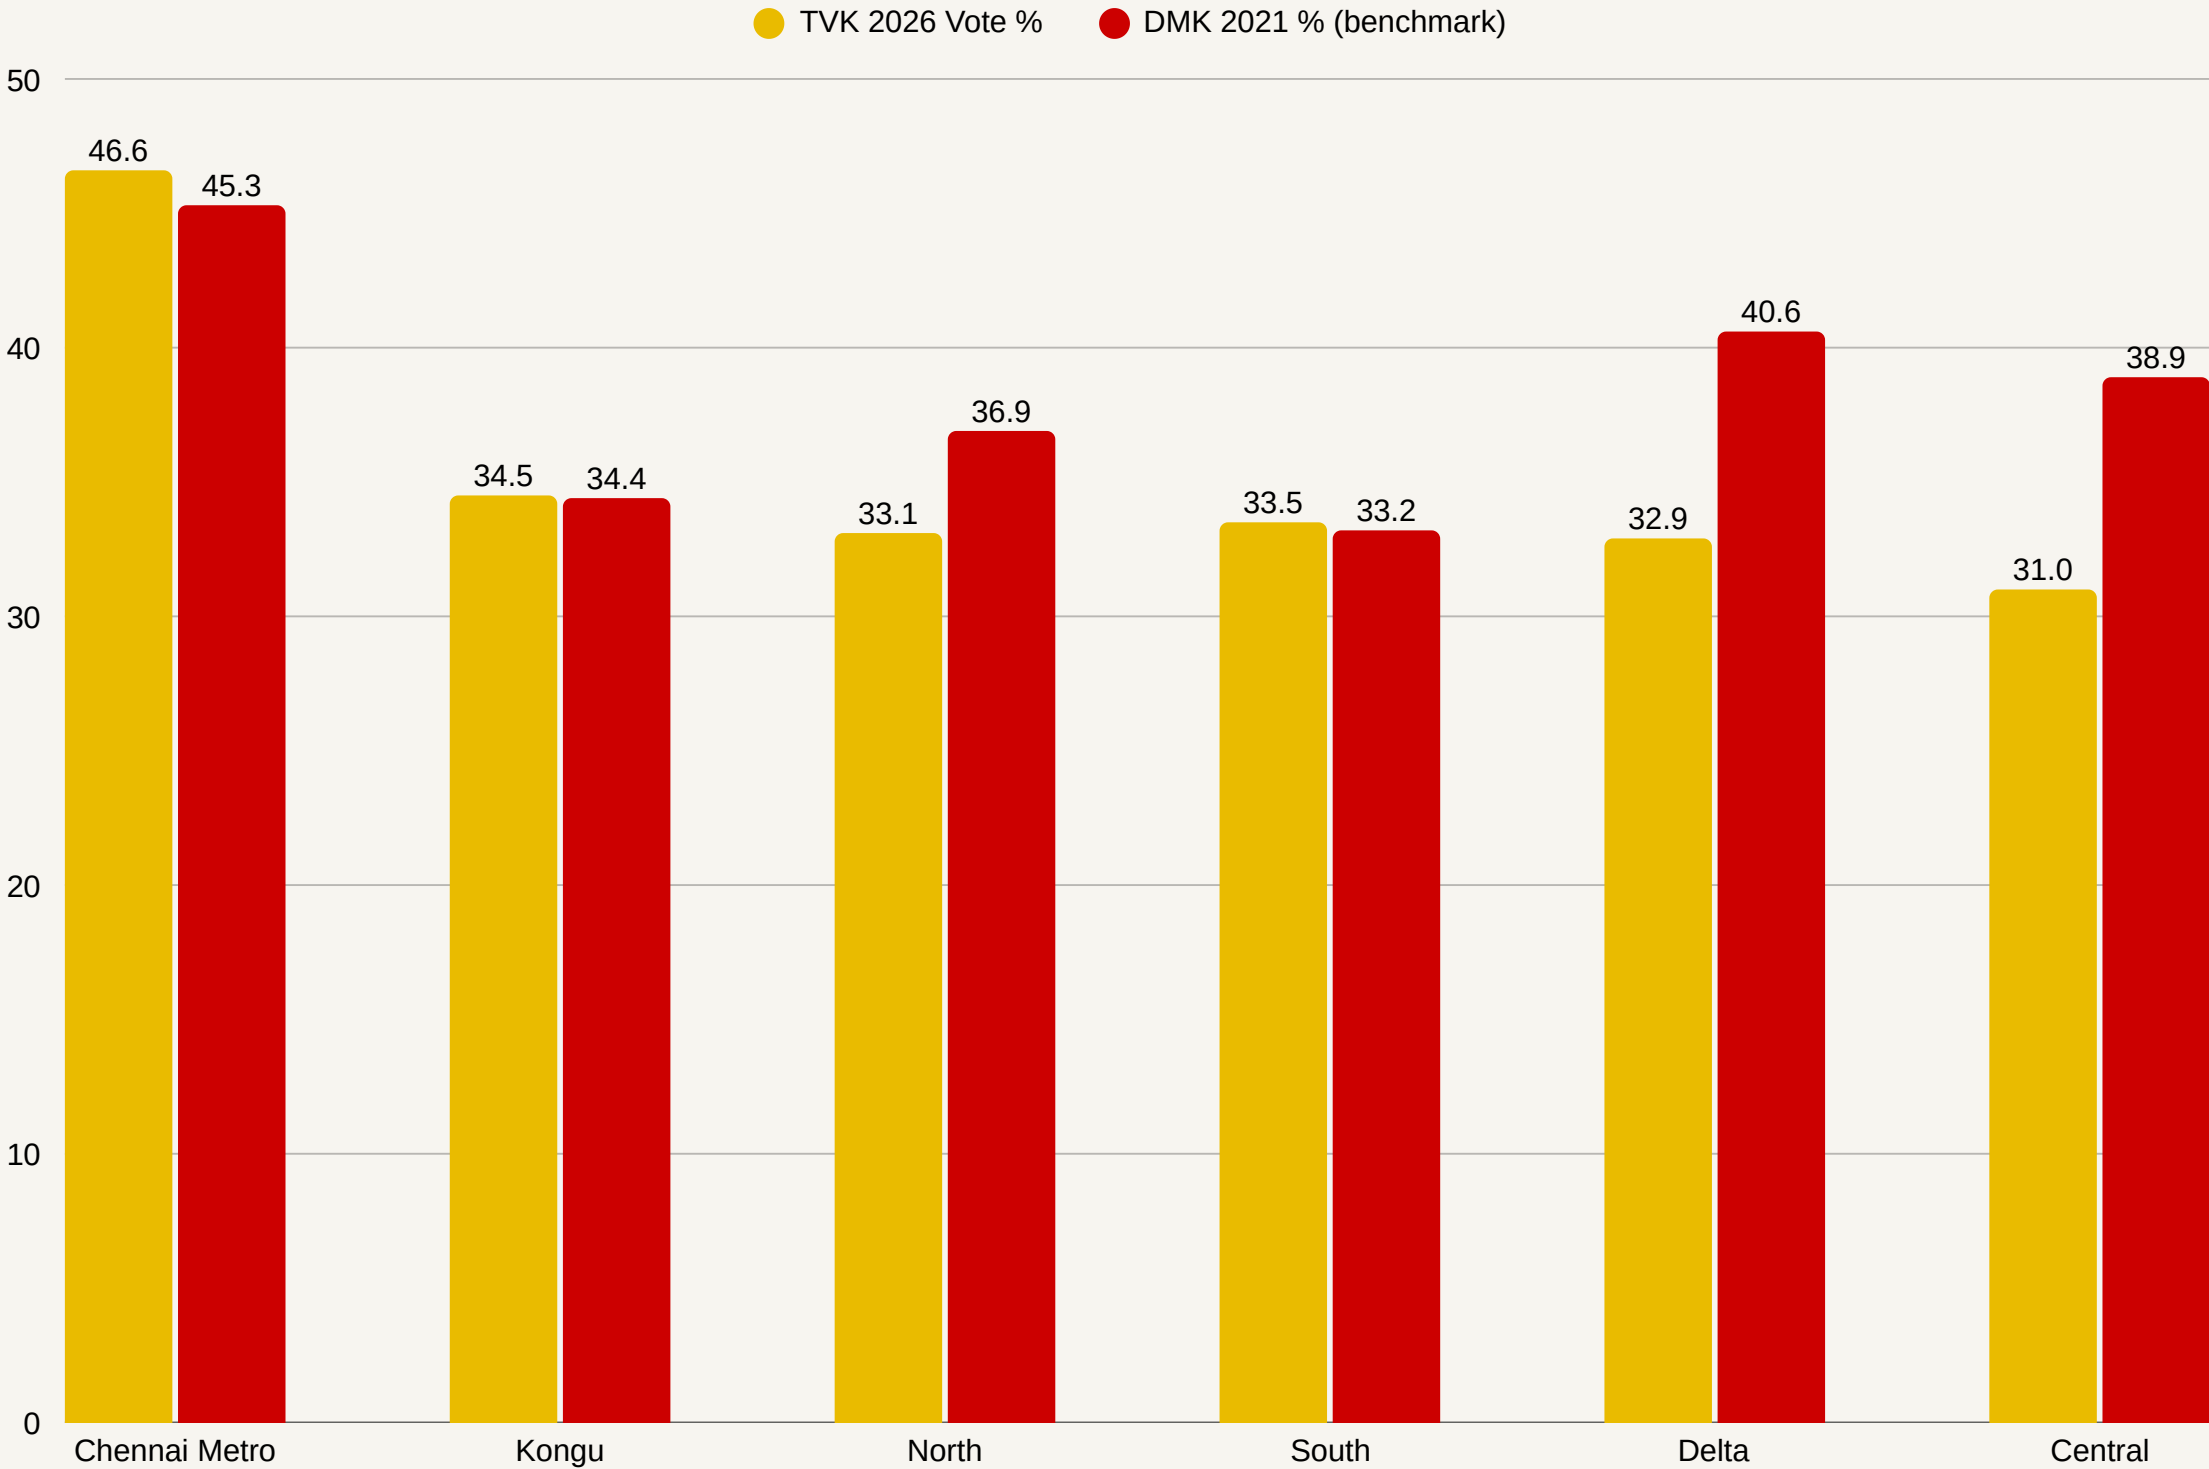

New voters / pool

~4.2%

Q3 — REGIONAL

A Uniform Wave — Not a Chennai Phenomenon

WHAT THIS TELLS US

Chennai Metro

46.6%

Exactly matches DMK's 2021 peak here. TVK has fully absorbed the city.

Kongu Belt

34.5%

Near-identical to DMK 2021 (34.4%). Proves national-level appeal, not just urban.

Central

31.0%

Lowest TVK % — yet still the highest party. AIADMK won 15 seats here.

Delta

32.9%

Farmer belt: AIADMK held 4 seats; TVK's ceiling limited by agrarian loyalties.

Key finding: TVK's vote share ranged only 15.6pp across all 6 regions (31.0%–46.6%) — a remarkably uniform national wave

Three Stories. One Verdict.

What the data conclusively tells us about Tamil Nadu 2026

Q1 · GEOGRAPHY

TVK Won Everywhere — But Unevenly

TVK topped all 6 regions and claimed 108 seats in its debut. Yet it swept Chennai Metro (29/32) while struggling in Central (12/41). Kongu and Central remain contested terrain — governance requires coalition management across regional identities.

Q2 · FLIPS

A Realignment, Not a Protest Vote

163 seats flipped — 65 from DMK alone. The direction was consistent and concentrated. A protest wave scatters; this did not. Tamil Nadu has seen a durable primary-party shift reminiscent of DMK's own emergence in 1971.

Q3 · VOTE SHARE

TVK Absorbed Equally From DMK and AIADMK

Both parties lost ~12–14pp each. TVK's 34.9% is not a DMK splinter — it is a genuine cross-party consolidation. Its vote share was uniform across all 6 regions (31–46.6%), confirming depth of appeal beyond urban or caste lines.
